Re: Parenting Workshops with Dr. Peter Haiman

To Whom It May Concern:

The Carolina Community Maternity Center is a birth center located in Fort Mill, South Carolina and serves the greater Charlotte, North Carolina metropolitan area. We are an independent organization owned and operated by four partner midwives who have as their goal the empowerment of women and families via collaborative care during normal, low risk pregnancies, labor, and delivery. An essential component of the CCMC's service to the area is education in regards to pregnancy, childbirth, holistic living, and parenting.

Dr. Peter Haiman graciously hosted three workshops at no charge to us, allowing our clients and families from the area to gather and learn about the research surrounding attachment in infants and the long lasting effects it has on the child's right brain development. Dr. Haiman's passion and expertise for the topic were evident, and well received by the audience. As one attendee put it in a thank you letter received, "This ... [was] a chance to have some important exchanges and support in the often lonely journey of gentle discipline" and "a great opportunity to get researched based information".

The CCMC and our clients and community are grateful to Dr. Haiman for the contributions he has made, and highly recommend that other community based organizations work with him to provide such similar workshops.

Sincerely,
